

New Message

From: Unknown Sender

Hello,

thank you for forgetting your phone in the cafe. I had fun viewing all your e-mail, websites and contacts, listening to your music and voice messages, and seeing where you like to shop and accessing your bank. I am not a thief, so here is your phone back. But heck, I like to have fun. So I copied all your contacts and just might spend the night harassing your friends and family.

I bet you wish you had your password, encryption and remote wipe enabled before you forgot your phone in the cafe. Oh well, too bad.

Bye

Archive

Reply

Delete

Protect your privacy:

- Activate a password on your smart phone.
- Set a short screen time-out.
- Lock the screen before putting down the phone.
- Don't let your browser remember passwords.
- Activate device wipe & reset after several incorrect passwords.
- Learn how to locate your phone on the Internet.
- Learn how to wipe your phone remotely.

Your smart phone is the window to your electronic world. Don't leave the window open.