

First Year of Certificate Service - Tens of Thousands Issued

Comodo, InCommon's partner in the InCommon Certificate Service, has announced that it has issued tens of thousands of certificates to more than 120 colleges and universities in the first year of the InCommon Certificate Service. Comodo is a leading certificate authority and Internet security organization, providing businesses and consumers with a variety of security and trust services.

The partnership between InCommon and Comodo CA Ltd. offers U.S. higher education institutions with unlimited certificates for one annual fee, providing substantial cost and overhead savings. Subscribers may issue unlimited Secure Socket Layer (SSL) certificates, including extended validation (EV), client (personal) certificates, and code signing certificates for all of the domains they own or control such as .edu, .org, .net, .com and others.

The Certificate Service now has 131 subscribers.

http://www.comodo.com/news/press_releases/2011/09/Comodo-And-InCommon-Partnership.html